Buffalo, Missouri: "It doesn't get much better than walking behind a good dog with your shotgun in hand and hearing a flutter of wings" is a quote from 4 Star Plantation owner Danny Brownlow and truly reflects what quail and upland bird hunting is all about" states Craig Alderman of QUWF. Joining QUWF as a Lodge Member adds the highest quality hunting experience for wing shooting there is and 4- Star joins a growing list of excellent member facilities with QUWF. "Experiencing great dog work, flushing coveys and rock hard points is what makes a great hunt" Alderman emphasizes, "add to that their dedication to keeping excellent quail habitat on the ground, promoting dog trials at the plantation, and you have a great partner for today's hunters and dog owners".

"We want our plantation to provide an exceptional experience, from great hospitality, superb southern cooking, safe and successful times afield to a very comfortable lodge to share the days stories. That is what hunting is all about and 4-Star was built to deliver" states Danny Brownlow. The property also offers special options for dog owners who want to use their own hunting dogs and test their training skills with either full or half day selections. "We also invite other QUWF chapters and members to work with us to host more dog trials here, we know they will want to come back" Danny concludes.

4-Star plantation, in Carlton, GA, was established and built in 2002 out of the love for quail hunting and dog work by Danny and Nancy Brownlow. The Plantation information is available at www.quwf.net in our "Places To Hunt" section with a link to their web site.

Since 2010 through 2011, QUWF, and its local chapters and members have spent $5.92 Million Dollars on wildlife conservation and habitat management efforts on over 904,000 acres across the countries landscape.
