Buffalo, Missouri: “The job of saving, preserving and maintaining quail and upland wildlife habitat for the long term, is impossible at the local level without the volunteers / landowners who are the backbone of QUWF and conservation. Today, we are very pleased and proud to announce the North Carolina QUWF Quail Point chapter joins our ranks in the conservation challenge” announces Craig Alderman of QUWF. This long active chapter has a strong history of local habitat work and youth activities bringing many dedicated members to the QUWF family.

“The choice of our future was a major decision not taken lightly. We want solid support for local projects of North Carolina and control of our own financial options. We have that in QUWF. Most of all we want to “turn-the-dirt” here in our area with the focus on real issues to us in habitat recovery and upland wildlife populations. With QUWF we have the tools and support to enjoy habitat work again, having fun as a group and taking on the tasks at hand with strong support for our youth programs and outreach” states Allen Mitchell, Chairman of the QUWF Quail Point chapter.

“Make no mistake, QUWF Chapters in North Carolina are going to make a significant difference. They care deeply about their state, the wildlife and its habitat, getting youth involved while at the same time preserving the hunting and outdoor heritage. They will have fun doing it all along the way, it is who they are with QUWF and we enjoy working with conservationists like this” states Nick Prough, Chief Wildlife Biologist.

Since 2010 through 2011, QUWF, and its local chapters and members have spent $5.92 Million Dollars on wildlife conservation and habitat management efforts on over 904,000 acres across the countries landscape.

Quail and Upland Wildlife Federation, Inc.™, a tax exempt 501(c)(3) conservation organization, serves its members and chapters nationwide, providing a strong local source of habitat focus on quail and upland wildlife and population recovery. Millions of dollars of habitat work have been completed by its members over the years on thousands of acres of both private and public lands, now that work continues with a renewed vitality. Our chapters from coast to coast, provide the grass roots, local habitat work that is making a difference each and every day.
